Open and Shut:
The Case for OA in Libraries

May 30, 2014 - Arcadia University, Glenside, PA

KEYNOTE SPEAKER
Sue Kriegsman - Program Manager for Harvard University Library's Office for Scholarly Communication

Benefits and Implementation of Open Access Policies

Hear about Harvard University's experience with open access, making scholarly information freely available to all.

Ms. Kriegsman identifies and implements ways for Harvard to open, share, and preserve scholarship, and has worked on a variety of digital initiatives such as the Harvard-Google book digitization project as the Project Manager. Ms. Kriegsman also manages the Harvard Library Lab that is an internal grant program to create lightweight, open, and scalable projects bringing innovation to the library.

CONCURRENT BREAKOUT SESSIONS

The Library as Publisher
Timothy Deliyannides & Lauren Collister (University of Pittsburgh)
Academic libraries are increasingly investing in new efforts to support their faculty in the activities they care about most. Learn why becoming a publisher can help meet the most fundamental needs of your research community and at the same time can help transform today’s inflationary cost model for serials.

Paving the Way for Open Access
George Aulisio (University of Scranton)
Learn about the trials and tribulations of starting an Open Access policy at a small liberal arts college. The speaker will share his outreach experiences, responses from campus governing bodies, results of a survey that tested faculty awareness and understanding of Open Access, and the next steps for Open Access on his campus.

If You Build It, They Will Come (if you invite them thoughtfully): Institutional Repositories in Academic Libraries
Eric Jeitner (Arcadia University) & Janelle Wertzberger (Gettysburg College)
The road to a successful institutional repository is a long and involved one – so where would an interested library begin? What are some important initial considerations? What options exist for repository platforms? What work belongs in an IR and how should it be promoted? The presenters will discuss these questions and more.
